PARIS, May 21—Premier Paul Reynaud admitted to the French Senate that German troops have occupied Amiens and Arras in northwestern France.

"Incredible mistakes have been made which will be punished," Reynaud said, in describing the terrific Allied setbacks. "Bridges across the Meuse River were not blown up."

BERLIN, May 21—Splitting the Allied army on the Western Front, German troops have captured Abbeville on the French coast and "dissolved" huge French forces that served as contact between Belgium and the Maginot Line, the German high command announced today.

In a communique issued from Adolf Hitler's headquarters, the Germans claimed a series of dazzling successes that carried the Nazis to the channel and presumably cut the main bulwark of Anglo-French-Belgian resistance.

The high command also announced that all the fortresses in Namur, Belgium, have fallen into German hands.

Abbeville lies at the mouth of the Somme River on the western coast of France, about 60 miles south of Calais. In the drive which resulted in the city's capture, General Henri Giraud, commander of the French 9th army, was taken prisoner, with members of his staff.

At the same time, the Germans claim capture of Amiens, which lies on the Somme and Arras Rivers, some 30 miles northeast of Amiens.

Coincident with these Nazi claims, all telephone communications between London and Paris were severed and authoritative explanations in London, said that all lines were needed for official purposes. There was immediate speculation as to whether or not the Germans may have succeeded in severing this vital line of communication.

LONDON, May 21—A wave of Allied optimism in London was shaken today by German claims that Amiens, Arras, and Abbeville had been captured, but well-informed spokesmen were inclined to belittle the latest Nazi claims. If any Nazi forces have reached a point such as Amiens, it was said, there they would be confined merely to light motorized patrols.

The situation actually is more confused than ever, a military spokesman said. He added that it was impossible to obtain a clear picture of the situation within the so-called German "bulge."

PARIS, May 21—Veritable "clouds" of German parachute troops are being dropped over the region surrounding Cambria, French military spokesmen revealed today as the high command announced repulses of German attacks along the Aisne, near Reims.

The sky fighters are attempting to seize railroads, bridges, and vital lines of communications, it was said, but apparently are met with stiff French resistance everywhere.

STOCKHOLM, May 21—Hopelessly caged by relentless Allied troops, which severed all lines of communication, German detachments fought for their lives today in a fierce battle at Balak-Bjornfjeld, Norway.

Their position was regarded by military experts as hopeless, but they continued to pour terrific fire at a combined French-British-Polish-Norwegian force, which is hammering at the Nazi semi-circle defenses along the iron ore railroad which runs along the Swedish border.

BERLIN, May 21—The German high command today announced that a British battleship, "probably of the Resolution class," and an unclassified heavy cruiser, had been badly damaged by Nazi air bombs off Narvik.

In addition, the announcement said

FUGITIVE FROM GEORGIA CHAIN GANG ARRESTED

Said To Have Broken Into Business Places Along
Lincoln Highway

NOW IN COUNTY JAIL

LANGHORNE, May 21—Alvis Baker, 23, reported to be a fugitive from a Georgia chain gang, is in the Bucks County jail at Doylestown where he was committed yesterday to await further orders from the Georgia prison authorities. He was arrested early Sunday morning by Penna. Motor Police of the Oxford Valley station at the entrance to the Trenton bridge at Morrisville.

Baker broke into three business places and an automobile early Sunday morning before being caught. A dairy truck operator saw a man jump through an open window and reported what he saw to the Oxford Valley sub-station of Motor Police. Privates Wenzel and Minker were on patrol near Morrisville when they picked up the Negro and took him to the sub-station for questioning.

Baker told police that he first stole a suit of clothes and a pair of gloves from the automobile of William Hewitt, Oxford Valley, while the car was parked in front of Hewitt's house. He wore the coat and started down the highway. At the Inter-State Glass House, a restaurant, Baker gained an entrance and broke a glass window in an electric box and stole the change.

TWO OVERCOME BY FUMES, WORKING IN A CESSPOOL

Thomas Todd and John White, Yardley, Have Narrow Escape; Now In Hospital

FIREMEN, OTHERS AID

YARDLEY, May 21—Thomas Todd and John White are in Mercer Hospital, Trenton, N. J., suffering from effects of being submerged in a cesspool, at the rear of the home of J. Philip Larson, in River Mawr.

Todd, and his nephew, John White, assisted by Mrs. Alice Buehrle, housekeeper for Mr. Todd, who always ran the pump for the outfit, had been working at the Larson home, cleaning the cesspool. Some difficulties were encountered, and Todd descended to ascertain the cause, and was immediately overcome by gas fumes. White, despatched to assist his uncle, and suffered a similar attack, and they both became mired in water and silt in the pool. Mrs. Buehrle, realizing their plight, screamed frantically for help, and Louis Boss, who was papering the Larson home; William Casey, who was painting a home nearby, and Joseph Beil, who resides nearby, rushed to render assistance. Boss phoned the fire company, and they arrived with ladders, ropes and gas masks.

Todd and White were submerged in the bottom of the pool, in unconscious conditions. The firemen lowered ladders and with wet clothes tied around their faces were able to tie a rope around Todd, who was pulled to the surface and, about five minutes later,

July 4th Committee To Hold Important Meeting

Tonight, at a meeting of the Independence Day Celebration Committee for Bristol and All the Adjacent Communities, there will be a general discussion of the plans for the proposed big celebration. All members of the committee and, in fact, every person who is interested, is urged to attend as the meeting tonight is to be an important one.

All organizations are urged to be represented at the meeting tonight. In a call issued for the meeting the following statement, in part, is made by the committee:

"Last July 4th, a patriotic celebration was held in Bristol under the sponsorship of the Independence Day Celebration Committee for Bristol and Adjacent Communities. There was a flag presentation in the morning at the Bristol post office building, a patriotic address and distribution of buttons with the slogan, 'I'm glad I'm an American.' The principles of Americanism and why those living in this country should be appreciative of it, was impressed upon the public. In the evening there was a patriotic address by the Hon. William S. Livergood, Jr., Secretary of Internal Affairs of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, a band concert, and a pyrotechnic display. Thousands of people attended the two affairs. It was voted an outstanding success.

"This year a similar affair is planned to again remind our citizenry that America is a land blessed by God, and that those who live within its borders are endowed with a freedom and an equality which should not be transgressed upon or its advantages usurped.

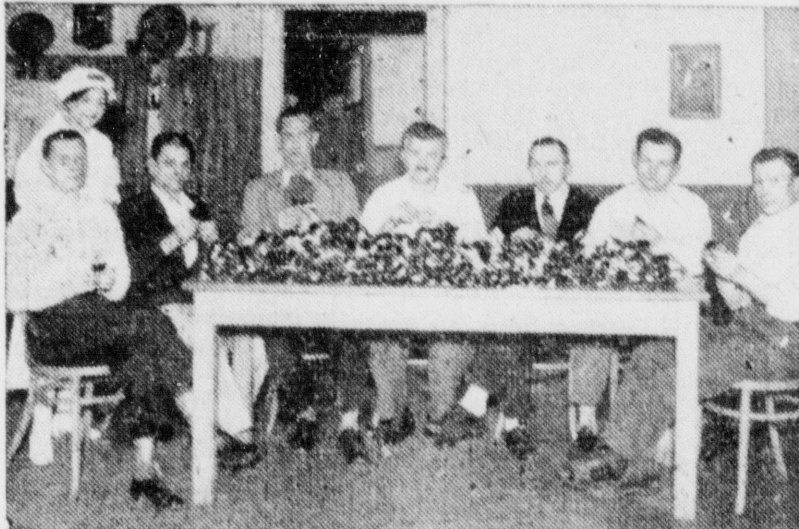

"Any financial assistance you may desire to give will be received with appreciation by the committee. Checks may be made payable to Roy F. Fry, treasurer.

"This celebration is not to be confined to Bristol residents alone, but all communities adjacent to Bristol are invited to join in staging this affair. Meetings are to be held weekly at eight o'clock in the Bristol Municipal Building, to which you and your friends are invited, either as representatives of your community, its organizations or as individuals. Notice of these meetings will be published in the Bristol Courier.

"We are confident that you will agree with us that no time has ever been more opportune to inculcate Americanism into the minds of those native to our soil, as well as to those born elsewhere, or those who are tainted with subversive ideas."

A miscellaneous surprise shower was given for Miss Mary Esposito, Wood and Penn streets, Thursday evening, in St. Ann's Club rooms. The affair was arranged by her attendants-to-be, Mrs. M. DiBlassio, the Misses Angelina Esposito, Jean Quici and Mary Napoli. The room was decorated in blue and white. A buffet supper was served to 150 guests, and dancing was enjoyed.

Fifth Columnists

Washington, May 20. THERE is no desire to start a spy hunt or to become hysterical about the fact that this country is belatedly about to embark upon a greatly stepped-up defense program. Nevertheless, it seems worth while to point out that all of the danger to our well-being does not lie outside the country. Some of it is inside.

WHILE it is essential to provide weapons and equipment to meet any attack from air, sea or land, it is equally essential to guard against the subversive influences that live and operate inside the United States. There is no more doubt of the existence of these influences than there is of their complete disloyalty. Their first allegiance is not to this country but to countries and parties whose object is to wreck our institutions and overturn our system.

IN recent days there has been ample evidence of the effectiveness of so-called "fifth columns" in Norway, in Denmark, and in Holland. There is reason to believe that in Belgium, too, the sudden surrender of the key fortress of Eben-Emaels was due more to the traitors inside than to the mythical "secret weapon" of the Germans, which seems to be more a piece of typical Nazi terror propaganda than a reality. In the dispatches recently there was news of a roundup of "fifth columnists" in England and the imprisonment of some 3,000 suspected of subversive activities.

AND before the war in France there were Communist strikes in munition plants and Communist resistance to the efforts to pre-

JUDGE KELLER GIVES BOY A CHANCE; COULD HAVE BEEN LIFE TERM

Paul Zukow, of Warrington Township, Pleads Guilty To Nine Bills of Indictment

COSTS COUNTY $265.65

Numerous Other Cases Are Heard By The Bucks
County Court

DOYLESTOWN, May 21—President Judge Hiram H. Keller yesterday gave an 18-year-old Warrington township farm boy a chance, in spite of the fact that he could have been sentenced to the Eastern State Penitentiary for the balance of his life.

The defendant, Paul Zukow, pleaded guilty to nine bills of indictment charging the theft of gasoline, two automobiles and a lot of miscellaneous things including flashlights and other articles. He was arrested, together with several juveniles who will be heard in Juvenile Court later in the week. They were caught as a result of a home-made burglar alarm made by a Bucks county farmer.

Judge Keller told Zukow that he had already cost the county of Bucks $265.65 in costs, which were directed to be paid by the county.

The Court suspended a prison sentence on Zukow on condition that he not apply for an automobile driver's license for two years and that he be at home every night at 9 o'clock unless out with his parents or attending church. He was also placed on probation for three years.

"If you were older I'd send you to the penitentiary without a bit of hesitancy," declared Judge Keller. "The taxpayers of Bucks county will have to pay the bill for costs for your parents have no money. As it is the Court looks upon this case as one big escape for your nine offenses were all committed within a short space of time. The Court is not so much interested in the past as it is in the future."

Chester R. Glover, of VanBuren, Indiana, pleaded guilty yesterday in Bucks county criminal court before Judge Calvin S. Boyer to a charge of attempting to rob Horace Biglover, 65, of Ryan's Corner, while he was asleep at night. Glover entered the home of Biglover, a former Justice of the Peace whom he knew for some time, and hit him over the head with a hammer.

Judge Boyer sentenced Glover, who is 18, to serve not less than 3 nor more than 6 years in the Eastern State Penitentiary. Glover was arrested by Corporal R. D. Evans, of the Oxford Valley sub-station of Pennsylvania Motor Police. Glover was also directed to pay the costs and a fine of $50.

Judge Boyer deferred sentence until Wednesday on Anthony Matteucci, 47, of Langhorne, charged with the unlawful possession of liquor. The defendant has a restaurant along the Lincoln Highway. He admitted selling one time and giving liquor away another time.

James Streitzinger, 19, of New Orleans, rancher and dairy hand, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Keller to a charge of larceny of an automobile. He was placed on probation on condition that he get a job with William D. Yoder, near Blooming Glen, who has consented to hire him. He was ordered to pay the costs at the rate of $10 a month. Streitzinger admitted driving away with a car owned by Daniel Collins, of Dublin, after Collins had given him a "lift." The car was taken as Collins got out to get some water for the radiator. The defendant later ran into a ditch and was stalled.

Ross Clifton Stuart, of Phila., pleaded guilty before Judge Keller yesterday to a charge of forging a $3.60 Pennsylvania Treasury Department check. He was sentenced to serve 4 months to one year in the Bucks County Prison. Stuart had been arrested before and served 5 months in Camden, N. J., on a larceny charge.

Richard Ziegler, of Rich Hill, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to a charge of driving while drunk on April 6 when he was arrested by Private Graham, of Quakertown sub-station at

THE GAL GROWS OLD

"The harvest of old age is the recollection and abundance of blessings previously secured," said Cicero in De Senectute; and again in the same classic: "Old age is the consummation of life, just as of a play."

Shirley Temple is reputed to have been diligent at her lessons, so it is not to be doubted that she is conversant with De Senectute. It may be assumed, therefore, that she derives comfort from perusing the wise words of Cicero in this gently melancholy hour. For Miss Temple, feeling old age creeping on her, has laid aside her career.

Well, it comes to everyone, soon or late. Those were fine years, the years when Shirley was young. All life lay before her and the world was at her feet in the bright days when she was the reigning queen of Hollywood and the No. 1 box office attraction among feminine stars. True, she held the latter distinction as late as last year—but there were ominous signs that time was taking its toll. No other actress packed enough appeal to outdistance Miss Temple at the box office; but two masculine stars moved into brackets above her. Why gay young dogs like Clark Gable and Tyrone Power outdraw so glamorous an actress, there can be only one answer: The gal grows old.

And sure enough she does. Many hadn't realized it until they read Miss Temple's real age in candid dispatches from Hollywood. Good heavens! The woman is all of 11!

So, with a gentle dignity befitting her years, lavender-and-old-lace Shirley blows a farewell kiss and slowly, pensively walks offstage—or rather off the movie lot. The world is sorry to see her go. But, as has been said, she may comfort herself by observing with Cicero that "the harvest of old age is the recollection and abundance of blessings previously secured."

REVIVING THE WAR HORSE

Third Army maneuvers in Louisiana are affording the first test of a new combination of horse and machine cavalry, and correspondents covering the mimic war game are exclaiming that Phil Sheridan ought to be able to rise from the grave and enjoy the realization that his branch of the service is coming into its own again.

In the Civil War the gallant cavalry leader could perform prodigious feats of long distance reconnaissance, moving with what seemed incredible speed for those days to completely encircle the enemy, capturing trains, stores and horses. The exploits of his brigadier, young Custer, sound even more incredible.

With the development of modern firearms the value of mounted mass attack decreased. The mobility of cavalry did no good if motorized troops could dash fifty miles to the field of action.

To keep up with the trend the cavalry reorganized two regiments. There are three troops of horses and three troops of motorized cavalry. The horses are loaded in trailers which travel down the road with the speed of any other motor vehicle and at the scene of action the animals are unloaded in five minutes to make a dash for the enemy in one of the hurricane charges of old.

Apparently the results have been satisfactory and students of history are rejoicing that the word cavalry has not entirely lost its meaning.

FOR THE LITTLE FARM

COLONIAL architecture lends itself well to rural and semi-rural surroundings. Nothing has been omitted from this design to produce a complete farm home. It is best suited to a small farm.

The utility room, located off of the kitchen, is an ideal space in which to store tools and working clothes.

Inquiries relative to this house should be addressed to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, 1337 Connecticut Avenue, Washington, D. C., and should refer to plan 1983.

TITAN TOWER by JAMES G. CHESNUTT

Story So Far

Acquaintance of handsome Dr. Bill Blaine and charming Nurse Linda Norton as they treat elevator accident victim atop skyscraper, Titan Tower, quickly kindled to romantic temperature. It was the first time anyone had stirred Linda since the death of her airman husband, Mike Morton, by whom she has small son, Mickey. Remembrance of her whirlwind courtship, and tragic death of the irresponsible Mike, leaves Linda in great mental turmoil. If it had not been for her kindly neighbor, Mrs. Blauer, who had been a second mother to little Mickey, Linda would not have known where to turn.

CHAPTER SIX
It was Mrs. Blauer, too, who had started Linda on her new career, volunteering to keep young Mickey during the day while Linda studied at first and, later, while she worked. An old practical nurse, Mrs. Blauer had suggested that Linda, already a registered nurse, study stenography to qualify for an office assistant's job with a doctor.

When she had finished her course, Linda went directly to Dr. Thorpe, her old anatomy instructor at the university.

"Dr. Thorpe," Linda had said, "I'm back to earth. I'm not a stewardess any more. I am qualified as a nurse and also as a secretary. I want to work; I have to—for my baby and myself."

Dr. Thorpe gave her a job.

Linda had much for which to thank Janice Marberry, too. She had taken an instant liking to Janice on that day they first met in the insurance office in Titan Tower. It was Janice, and her roommate, Josephine Monroe, the tall, willowy, sophisticated who was such a strange contrast to little Janice, who had seen to it that Linda moved to the same building where they shared an apartment.

Janice and Jo would be dashing in any minute now, eager for details of all the thrilling events of the afternoon. She'd tell them about the accident, all right, Linda resolved, but should she go on from there?

Should she tell the girls about little Linda being knocked for a loop again by something that looked like love? Maybe they'd know something about Dr. Blaine, she reasoned; they had worked in the building longer than Linda.

Finally she compromised with herself. She'd tell them, but casually—with no show of excitement—and ask indifferently if they knew the young man. That would do it.

This problem decided, Linda's mind flew back to the dream from which Mrs. Blauer had awakened her—the dream and the mental turmoil which occasioned it.

The fog part was natural. Every bad dream she had experienced in the past two years had its events set against a backdrop of fog. Fog... and falling. That fixation, subconscious though it was, went back again to Mike and a tragic night...

Linda had flown through the fog many times, experiencing no fear after the first tension of the neophyte flier upon seeing the ship dip into cottony vapor which looked as thick as the inside of a mattress. She never failed to get a thrill during the first moments, when the red and green lights on port and starboard wings, normally almost invisible from the cabin, dyed the fog on either side of the plane, spreading

Mike was in the air or grounded, they would say a telepathic good-night at 11 o'clock; Linda with a kiss to the vacant pillow beside her, Mike to the stars above or the twinkling lights of towns below—or to his secret self.

She would like to skip the grim memory of the call from the airport which roused her from a fitful sleep; the message that Trip 15—Mike's plane—was four hours overdue and ruby and emerald glow as far as one could see on either side.

Linda remembered, wondering if Mike still observed their 11 o'clock custom.

It wasn't foggy at the airport that night Mike took off on a new trip. There was an unlimited ceiling, topped by a frosting of stars. Linda, feeling a strange uneasiness which was something more than the miserable way she felt anyway, watched the takeoff.

Odd, how she could remember each insignificant, unrelated detail, now—years later.

She recalled Tex King, the pilot and one of the line's crack veterans, nodding at his co-pilot and winking at Linda:

"I'll take care of sonny-boy for you, ma'am, and see that he behaves in Salt Lake."

She remembered wondering, as the big silver bird roared off the ground and into the night, if Mike still observed their 11 o'clock custom. It was a sort of rite with them.

During those first halcyon days of their romance, whenever they were separated at night, whether unreported. She preferred to avoid, if she could, remembering the awful vigil—waiting for word which never came, living vicariously over and over again each detail of the crash she knew had happened, long before search parties found the plane a day later.

The craggy mountain peak, hidden by wool-thick fog, which loomed suddenly before the speeding plane—Linda wondered whether it had looked red or green in that last brief moment.

Probably red, for the ship burst into flames when it struck.

The thing Linda remembered most, though, the thing she could never forget, was Mike's watch.

It was her gift to him—a wedding present. She still saw before her the face of that watch, its crystal shattered.

The hands were stopped exactly at 11 o'clock!

Lower Southampton township, South Langhorne, Warminster township, Wrightstown township, Wyncote, Dublin, New Britain township, Silverdale and Riegelsville.

The 29 school districts were given the choice of three dates, April 19th, May 10th and 24th, on which to schedule their final examinations and the County Superintendent expressed appreciation with the fine co-operation shown by the teachers and the districts.

Bucks countians were given a tip about being careful of buying top soil, joining suit clubs and being the victims of photographers, at a meeting of the Bucks County Police Academy, Thursday evening, at Doylestown, when Detective Sergeant Lamberton of the New Jersey State Police was the speaker on "Confidence Men and Rackets."

The New Jersey State Policeman warned Bucks countians about buying top soil from strangers because very often it contains little top soil but plenty of coffee grounds mixed with a little soil.

"If you join suit clubs patronize your own local merchants because then you will know that you will not be the victim of a racket," said the guest officer.

Touching on the hobby of taking pictures and the hobby of photography, Detective Sergeant Lamberton warned about the danger of letting into the house strangers who pose as photographers and merely want an opportunity to look around in order to prepare to break in and steal.

"Be careful when a photographer comes to your house and wants to see the family album because he may be trying to get a layout of the house in order to commit a robbery," said the officer.

Detective Sergeant Lamberton, who pinched-hit for Lieutenant John Wallace, who is on a leave of absence in California, explained the working of various kinds of rackets dealing with watches, furniture, rings, bonds, coins and the tricks of confidence men.

WHY ENVY A STEAK WHEN EATING SPINACH?

Here is good news for many who suffer stomach or ulcer pains due to excess acid. It has been found that bismuth coats the stomach lining on the sensitive parts, thus preventing the irritating action of digestive secretions and foods. It enables many to eat hard-to-digest foods, such as steaks and corn beef and cabbage without after-irritation. Udgas Tablets contain bismuth and other valuable ingredients in a balanced formula. They have been praised by thousands. Try a 25c box of Udgas for relief of ulcer and stomach pains, indigestion, gas pains, heartburn, burning sensation, bloating and other conditions caused by excess acid. Udgas Tablets are safe to use and must help or money refunded. At United Cut Rate and good drug stores everywhere. (Advertisement)

Parsley of 1940 Model Has Heavy Double Foliage

Cooking herbs familiar to our grandmothers have by no means been abandoned. One of the best is parsley, which is still universally used, and will surely be wanted in every vegetable plot.

The experience of generations has proved the good points of parsley as a garnish, and as a flavoring herb. Yet plant breeders consider it still subject to improvement, and in the All America trials for 1940, the judges agreed with them. An award was given to a new variety named Evergreen.

Evergreen parsley is a double curled variety, with heavy, deeply cut foliage, in dense heads. It is uniform dark green, a rapid and strong grower, resistant to frost injury.

Parsley is one of the hardestiest of vegetables and can be sown as soon as the ground is prepared; but it germinates slowly. Many gardeners mix a few radish seeds with the parsley to mark the row. The radish germinates quickly, and can be harvested before the parsley begins to crowd. Be sure to use very few radish seeds, otherwise the parsley will be crowded by the radishes, and will be uprooted when the latter are pulled.

Those who like the parsley flavor should grow a row of Hamburg rooted parsley. This produces some leaves, but is grown chiefly for its roots, which resemble small parsnips, and impart a unique flavor to stews and soups. They are highly esteemed by epicures and not often found in the markets.

Racing with Alfred Court for peak honors in this thrilling European invasion is the new opening spectacle, "The Return of Marco Polo," fashioned and costumed in Paris by Max

Weldy, designer of the Folies Bergere productions, at a cost of over $80,000. This is the last word in pageantry, its color tones, gorgeously fantastic garb, and rich trappings are like nothing ever seen in America before.

The newly-imported horse acts for the Big Show—sixty-four marvelously-trained equines—brings Europe's most famous horsemen to the world's largest big top, now a solid blue canvas, with its air conditioning perfected by a season's experimentation.

Scores of European headline troupes and stars, headed by the unparalleled Les Bretinis, Elly Ardely, Truzzi, the

"FLIT" PIEO WINS ROPE - CLIMBING CHAMPIONSHIP

Captures His Third Championship In A. A. U. Competition

AT CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Bristol Student at Penn State Has Overcome Great Handicap

Roman Pieo, Bristol's famous rope climber, has again brought honors to himself and to his home-town, by winning his third American rope-climbing championship in A. A. U. competition.

Pieo, 22, sped up the rope in record time in Chicago, last week, adding another laurel to his sports crown, despite the fact he had infantile paralysis when a boy.

The Bristolian, now a junior at Pennsylvania State College, broke the national record for the 25-foot rope climb in the National Amateur Athletic Union's 51st annual championships in New York, back in 1935, and he's still going strong. At the time of that climb in New York, Pieo scaled the 25 feet in 6.4 seconds, breaking the old record of 7.2, as he competed against college athletes.

Pieo first became interested in gymnastics during the 1934-35 term of school at Bristol high. Although rope-climbing was his first love, he did well also on the horizontal bars and the rings. Although but five feet, four inches tall, he has tremendous strength in his arms.

In a recent issue of "Ye Penn State Froth," an entire page is devoted to the athletic activities and accomplishments of "Flit" Pieo as he is known to his chums. In part it says: "Had a good coach in high school and worked hard," is his laconic explanation. He's discovered a two-wheeled bicycle, and speeds along faster than many of the students' automobiles. Some of the fellows who have ridden behind him say that it's better than a roller-coaster.

"My greatest thrill," states Flit, "came the time I heard the announcer in New York bawl that first place in the rope-climb with the amazing time of 6.4 had been won by Mrs. Pieo's son Roman."

DI RENZO SOFTBALL TEN DEFEATS TACONY TEAM

Di Renzo's softball ten defeated the Tacony Ramblers to the tune of 10-7, before a large crowd of spectators. The game was played on the Precision Diamond on Torresdale avenue, Holmesburg. For the home team George Daly starred at bat with two doubles and a single in three times at bat. For the palatians Bianco, Florio and Canuel excelled. The winning hurler, Jerry Cicanti, a southpaw, who hails from the York County Softball League, only allowed the losing aggregation nine hits in ten innings of play. He also batted out two safe bingles and accounted for a run. The losing pitcher Joe Daly, dished out sixteen safe blows.

The DiRenzo ten will open their 1940 season in the Bristol Community Softball League, Wednesday evening on the Pine street field, having the strong Harriman ten as their opponents.

Tickets Go On Sale For Boxing Bouts Held Here

Tickets for the first professional boxing show of the season here are now on sale. Reserve tickets may be had by calling the St. Ann's A. C. clubhouse, 9924. The show is scheduled for Monday night and a big advance sale of tickets is expected. Patrons of this section are requested to get in their reservations early so as not to be disappointed.

Promoter Cliff Smith and Matchmaker Jimmy Reilly today announced that any fight patron wishing the same seat for the entire season may do so by calling at the St. Ann's club-house and making arrangements for it.

Matchmaker Reilly has a fine card booked for the opener, featuring three Bristol boys, Joe Ferrara, Hokey Leighton and Andy Kondyra, the latter a newcomer to the local boxing ranks.

The big attraction, besides the wind-up, will be the fact that "Two-Ton" Tony Galento will referee the wind-up between Myon Padlo and Will Cheatem, according to the promoters. Padlo comes from Philadelphia and Cheatem from Newark.

KING A. C. LOSES FIRST GAME OF THE PRESENT SEASON

Game Is Awarded To Voltz-Texaco On A Forfeit

VOLTZ LEADING, 4 TO 2

Umpire Made Mistake in Calling Game at End of Fourth Inning

BRISTOL SUBURBAN LEAGUE

Schedule for Tonight—DIAMOND at Y. M. A. ODD FELLOWS at TULLYTOWN ST. LUKE'S at ROHM & HAAS CORNWELLS at EDGELEY MORRISVILLE. May 21—The King A. C. team lost their first game of the Bristol Suburban circuit last night when Umpire-in-chief Ray Texaco awarded the game to the Voltz-Texaco team on a forfeit. At the time of the forfeit, Voltz was leading the King aggregation, 4-2.

The trouble began when Umpire Pieo called the game at the end of the fourth, thinking at the time that five innings were completed and it was a legal game. But when he realized his mistake, he quickly changed his decision and told the teams to play another inning.

Voltz was ready to take its turn at the bat but the Morrisville team refused to go into the field. Pieo then gave them three minutes to change their mind and when they refused, he forfeited the game to the Voltz club.

Until then the game was a hurler's match between Jimmy Cooper of the Voltz clan and Adam Nowalinski, of King. Both boys twirled good ball and the score would have been much closer but for the ragged support of the mates of the pitchers.

Voltz made four hits off Nowalinski while the King team could collect but two off Cooper.

Nursery School Here Is Facing a Crisis of the day. Until now, the food has been provided by the government agency which sponsors the school, as have also the funds for teachers' salaries, supplies, etc., with Bristol providing and maintaining a building for the school.

Now the community has been asked by the government to pay part or all of the food costs. In a statement issued today, the advisory committee says it feels "that since the nursery school serves the whole community, if it is to continue, the whole community must support it."

An appeal is therefore being made to organizations in Bristol, asking them to pledge a definite amount, payable monthly or yearly, to keep the nursery school here.

The daily program at the school includes: Morning health inspection, free play (outdoors if possible); fruit juice and cod-liver oil in mid-morning; rest periods as needed; hot noon meal; two-hour nap; milk and crackers in mid-afternoon. Visits to the school here are urged by the committee members, who desire the public to see how the tots are aided. The school will be open to visitors this week, daily from nine until four; and on Wednesday evening from six until nine.

In Pennsylvania the nursery schools have an enrollment of 1600 children from families needing relief or families in low income group.

The advisory committee includes: Mrs. Hugh B. Eastburn, Mrs. Theodore B. Megargee, Mrs. Charles Peet, Warren P. Snyder, Arthur P. Brady, Antonio Alta, Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., Mrs. Wallace Windus, Mrs. Franklin Wallin, Thomas Janes.

Farm Boys Are Being Benefitted By Courses benefit to the young people, especially to the boys, because they have a tendency to cause the boys to take a greater interest in farm work and to keep them on the farms.

It was pointed out during the discussion also that the life of the farmer is more independent and that for this reason the boys should desire to remain on them.

During the brief business session, which was in charge of the master, George Yerkes, one new member was welcomed.

The literary program at the conclusion of the business session opened with the singing of "The Dear Old Farm," following which the members responded to roll call by telling of timely chores for the farmers and housewives. Among the things mentioned were asparagus cutting, tomato planting and house cleaning.

Jack Kirkpatrick gave an account of the bird, the brown thrasher, which he said can be found in almost all parts of the United States and which sings mostly in the morning.

The lecturer, Mrs. Bjarni Bjarnason, gave a report of the address Dr. Baker delivered at the lecturers' conference at State College. The program was brought to a conclusion with the singing of "Stay On the Farm."

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, May 29th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bjarni Bjarnason, where a box supper will be served at seven o'clock. Before and after the supper the men will play soft ball.

The Great Game of Politics

pare. After the war began, the French Government dealt severely with the Communist leaders, but there is slight question that had France, in the days of preparation for this life-and-death struggle in which she is now engaged, vaccinated against the corrosive effect of Communist activity and propaganda, France would be a stronger nation now. There is not the slightest doubt that internal movements of Fascism and Communism have weakened the Allied nations and sapped the resisting powers of at least some of the neutrals who have suffered ravishment and now find the heel of the dictator grinding their faces.

IF these fifth-column activities have been so general among the European neutrals, it is unreasonable to suppose that they have not extended to this country. Only a fool would feel that we are free from them. If the threat is as real as the President has told us—and no clearheaded person thinks he has exaggerated it—then it is the height of folly to disregard this domestic situation. Of course, we are not at war and no one seriously wants to suggest that steps be taken now that would abridge the civil liberties of citizens or restrict the freedom of either press or speech.

NEVERTHELESS, it would seem to be a sensible thing if, while we are concentrating upon strengthening and supplementing our army, navy and aerial equipment so as to repel the possible invader from outside, we could at the same time tighten up the lines so as to guard against mining, sapping and sabotage from the inside. Certainly the danger from that is less fanciful than the danger from the outside, of which Mr. Roosevelt so solemnly and properly warns and to fend against which the Congress is prepared, without much thought of how the money is to be obtained or from whom or from where, to appropriate.

FOR example, it would be somewhat comforting if, instead of asking that $200,000,000, or nearly one-fifth of the total appropriation requested, be allotted to the President personally, to expend unchecked and as he thinks best, at least a part of this sum be allotted to the Department of Justice for the purpose of keeping the closest possible watch upon the Fascist and Communist activities in this country and, through the F. B. I. or any other competent agency, locating the potential fifth columnists in America, so that if and when the crisis arises, their objectives can be blocked and their power to injure nullified.

IN view of the striking record of hostility toward the Dies Committee of the Department of Justice, the President and the President's wife, to say nothing of the extraordinary White House coddling of such Communist saturated organizations as the American Youth Congress and the Workers Alliance—in view of this it would be especially encouraging if some statement could be made or some action taken or some money allocated that would indicate to the people that this Administration is alive to the fifth-column danger in America, determined to control it and not just soggily sentimental about it.

IN final comment on this subject, it seems not untimely to say a word about the unconscious as well as the conscious fifth columnists. The former are not dangerous in the sense the latter are dangerous, but they do considerable harm nonetheless. The male and female writers who constantly bleat about our having no stake in this war, who insist that every move to aid the Allies or prepare ourselves is preliminary to sending "our boys" abroad to be butchered, who proclaim that our duty is to be "pro-American" instead of "pro-Ally"—these people, ignorant and innocent though they may be, are playing the German game and aiding the conscious fifth columnists. Little can be done about them. There is no governmental way to stop them. The only thing that can blot them out is public opinion.
